

The Museum of Art and Archaeology is located in Pickard Hall on historic Francis Quadrangle, at the corner of University Avenue and South Ninth Street, on the University of Missouri-Columbia campus.

From the outside, Pickard Hall is one of the many majestic buildings on MU's historic Francis Quadrangle.

But step inside and you will find yourself embarking on a journey through the Museum of Art and Archaeology that spans seven millennia and six continents.

A Museum Associate membership is an investment in art and cultures from the past, but saved for the future.

Greek • Roman • Egyptian • African Asian • European • American

As a Museum Associate you are invited to not just observe the stunning collections of art and artifacts as a visitor, but to actually carry on the preservation and celebration of the third largest visual arts museum in Missouri.
