

Missouri Nostalgia

Works on Paper from the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Collection

These works from the Heart of the Nation Collection focus on rural and agricultural lifeways and spaces. They have an abiding sense of timelessness; passing seasons are celebrated as part of a perennial cycle, along with people simultaneously homespun and heroic tilling the land or harvesting its bounty. Trains and other symbols of modernity appear, but they often seem to be passing through the landscape rather than being part of it. Some images have the melancholy of a forced quaintness. Many suggest a nostalgia for a bucolic, idealized Midwest, which was certainly vanishing by the time the works were made and arguably may never have existed.
